But he again grew worse and died, Dr. Baumeister sign-ing the death certificate and giving pneu-monia as the cause of death. Bite of a Gila Monster. Bite of a Gila Monster.

Los Angeles, May 5th.—A telegram received yesterday by friends of Walter L. Vail, who was bitten by a Gila monster near Tucson, states that he is out of danger and will recover. The particulars of the case are that Vail was riding to Tucson from the Empire ranch, and saw a Gila monster on the road and dismounted to kill it. After he had stoned it to death, as he supposed, he tied it behind his saddle to take into Tucson. Shortly afterward he reached behind to get a package, and the supposed dead reptile closed its jaws on his finger. It was necessary to pry the jaws open with a piece of steel. If Vail recovers it will be the first case on record.

HYPNOTIC CURE.

Application of the New Science to & Young Paralytie. Paris, May 5th .- The new power of hypnotism seems to be making rapid strides as a curative agent. An experiment recently made at the Hospital La Charite in this city has demonstrated its usefulness in a new and unexpected manner. A young girl 16 years of age, afflicted with paralysis of the right arm and leg, was sent in November last by Dr. Moret, of the Rheims Senool of Medicine, to Dr. Luys, of Charite, for treatment. The treatment conisted in the transference of the paralysis from the girl Marie to another patient named Leontine, and the process was as follows: Marie, quite awake, was seated on a chair by the side of Leontine, and the right hand of the latter was on the paralyzed right hand of the former. Dr. Luys threw Leontine into a lethargic state, then taking a large magnet with five branches, he held it at first above the hands placed one on the other, and then moved it along the arm as far as the shoulder.

This was continued for about two min-utes. It was sufficient to produce a fibril-lary movement in the fingers and twitchings in the left leg.

Marie then retired, and Leontine passed from lethargy into catalepsy. In this state Leontine complained that her right arm and left leg were paralyzed, which was actually the case. Dr. Luys the suggested to Leontine to wake and not to feel anything of the paralysis on fixing. She did so, and the paralysis of disappeared. The same experiment we repeated on the following day, and after two more treatments Marie was cured.

The official report of the case says: "Dur-The official report of the case says: "During the fourth experiment the hitherto paralyzed hand of Marie displayed by pressure a force equal to the weight of twelve kilogrammes. Four days after this the force rose to the weight of nineteen kilogrammes, and at the same time the left hand had gone up from twelve kilogrammes to fifteen. The leg also continued to progress admirably. The return of the sensitive and motor functions of the two limbs being confirmed, the patient.

THE LATEST SUPREME COURT LIQUOR DECISION

the United States, rendered a week ago yesterday in an Iowa liquor case, has excited wide-spread interest, and the expressions concerning it are almost as varied as there are critics. We do not consider the Court as announcing any new doctrine, or as construing the constitutional powers of the Federal Government any more broadly than heretofore.

The case in brief is as follows: Iowa has a law prohibiting the manufacture, sale or importation of spirituous or malt or vinous liquors. A Peoria, Ill., manufacturer of beer shipped original packages of his manufacture to customers in Keokuk. An Iowa official seized these packages after they crossed the line, and before the delivery to the purchaser was complete. The lower Court and the State Supreme Court sustained him in this action. The case then went to the Supreme Court of the United States, and that final tribunal reverses the Court below. The locality, since the law, as construed by ing at the Asylum at 2 p. m. to-day for the as the State prohibited the sale of liquor, the privilege of selling liquor denied residents of that State could not be extended to residents of other States. They held that the right to prohibit the sale of in original packages without tax or liquor was broad enough to include the license, and just as far as his consumption actual sale and delivery of liquor within the State, no matter where the liquor

The Supreme Court of the United States holds that ardent spirits are subjects of interstate commerce. Whenever a State law amounts to regulation of such commerce, and directly or indirectly inhibits the receipt of an imported commodity or its disposit on before it has ceased to become an article of trade between States, it comes in conflict with a power exclusively Miner Finch, of Folsom, Denies Having in the Ceneral Government, and it is therefore void. And the Court adds:

Undoubtedly it is for the legislative branch of the State Governments to determine whether the manufacture of particular articles of traffic will injuriously affect the public, and it is not for Congress to determine what measures a State may properly adopt as appropriate or needful for the protection of the public morals, life or safety; but notwithstanding it is not vested with supervisory powers over matters of local ad ministration, the responsibility is upon Congress, so far as the regulation of interstate commence is concerned, to remove the restriction upon the State in dealing with imported articles which have not been mingled with the common mass of property therein. * * * Whatever our individual views may be as to the deleterious qualities of particular articles, we can not hold that any articles which Congress recognizes as subjects of interstate commence are not such, or that whatever are thus recognized can be controlled by State laws amounting to regulations, while they retain that character; although, at the same time, if directly dangerous to themselves, the States may take appropriate measures to guard against injury before it obtains complete jurisdiction over them. To concede to a State the power to exclude, directly or indirectly, articles so situated, without Congressional permission, is to concede to a majority of the people of a State, represented in the State Legislature, the power to regulate commercial intercourse between the States, by determining what shall be its subjects, when that power was distinctly granted to be exercised by the people of the United States, represented in Congress, and its possess.on by the latter was considered essential to the more perfect union which the Constitution was adopted to create. Undoubtedly it is for the legislative branch of

In this decision six Justices concurred and three dissented from it. The extreme prohibitionists hold that the decision completely destroys their footing and that now prohibition must proceed upon a national basis. The more conservative take a directly opposite view, and contend that the decision does not affect the one great aim of the cause, the suppression of the saloon and the retailing of ardent spirits.

Let us look at the matter calmly and we will discover that the Court has enunciated no new doctrine. There are very many cases in which it has affirmed the constitutional doctrine that over interstate commerce the States as individual members of the Union have no power. In the celebrated Maryland case it was held that the State has no power to tax or interfere with an article of interstate commerce so long as it retains that character, and until it has mingled with and become of the volume of the common property in the State. In the Marshalltown case it was held that a railroad company had the was held that a railroad company had the and Tebbets' last motion was carried. right to bring liquor into a State as a common carrier, but the Court did not say that after it had been delivered in the State to the consignee the State laws in his own State it becomes a portion of the common property thereof, and is subject to the local police regulations of the State. So that A B cannot break the orig. inal package in his State and sell it to the people thereof, if the State law prohibits

This is really what the decision amounts to, and it is not therefore in the direction of the repression of any State right, nor the enlargement of any Federal prerogative; it is not a tendency toward centralthe breaking down of the sovereign powers of the States. That it has no political significance in these directions is obvious from the fact that if political prejudices have anything to do with Court decisions, in this case there are none, for the decision is by three Democratic and three Repub-

The prohibitory law of Iowa was asked for, and the campaign preceding its adoption was based upon the distinct understanding that it was not intended so much to interfere with the use of liquor as a beverage, as to suppress the evils of the saloon system. According to the Iowa State Register, a conservative and thoughtful paper, the prohibition argument was aimed mainly at the bar, which was held to be a menace to society. That journal says:

The statement was repeatedly made by the advocates of prohibition that they did not intend to interfere with social habits that did not themselves interfere with the welfare of society. But the open saloon, the dram-shop, with its temptations to excessive drinking, its opportunities for squandering the wages of the poor man, its incentives to crime and its shelter to criminals, must go. The Supreme Court gives no word of encouragement for its return. But it does sustain the very position which the friends of prohibition took when they disclaimed any intention of interfering with individual habits that did not injure others.

So, to repeat the decision amounts

So, to repeat, the decision amounts to this, that a man who wants a case of liquors or any unbroken package of ardent spirits delivered to him in Iowa, from a seller of liquors outside of that States can have it done, but he cannot break such package and sell from it, or sell the package to another in the State of Iowa so long as the laws of his State prohibit it. The Prohibitionists have already announced that one of the labors of their future activity will be to procure from Congress the enactment of a law providing for the removal of the restriction upon the State in dealing with imported articles which have not been mingled with the common mass of property in the State. This appeal to Congress will be made upon the basis of an expression of the Supreme Court that will be found in the paragraph which we quote from the decision in this article.

The Philadelphia Press and the New York Evening Post as well as the Chicago Inter-Ocean, hold that the effect of the decision will be to destroy license laws largely, because under the ruling liquors can be sent into a State and sold in unbroken packages, however small, without the payment of any license or tax, while local dealers will be compelled to pay both license and tax, and thus be placed at a decided disadvantage. This may be true to a limited extent, but those journals are in error in the assumption that the decision will permit one "to set up as an importer and do a flask and bottle an act of interstate commerce any sale after the receipt by the importer. So far, then, as the original recipient is concerned, he can undoubtedly receive liquors affects local dealers they will be injured. but in a State where the sale is prohibited and tax and license are unknown as a consequence, the importation can cut no trade figure, while in States where the traffic is not forbidden, the law and the custom remain as they always have been,

The supervisors of the county were pledged to he suppression of hydraulic mining, and had done and would do their utmost to prohibit it. His informant was Supervisor Synder, of Yolo county, who said that Mr. Finch was mining by the hydraulic method. The latter replied that he had to use water to clear the gold from the bedrock, but was not engaged in hydraulicking.

President Ross said he had visited Mr. Finch's mine, and was satisfied that it was not run by the hydraulic method. Mr. Bates wanted to know whether it

State to the consignee the State laws could not control its disposition. Neither does it so hold now. It does not now say that after the unbroken package has been delivered to the importer he can go on and sell it unrestrainedly within the State, for as soon as delivery has been effected it becomes subject to the police regulations of the State.

So then if A B, residing in a State forbidding the sale of liquors, purchases from C D in another State a package of liquors, in bottles, kegs, barrels or flasks, and imports them into his own State, he does so under the interstate commerce right guaranteed between the States to all the citizens thereof by the Federal Constitution.

Some weeks ago he came to this city from Elk Grove, where he had heen employed, to consult Justice Henry in regard to bringing suit to recover the sum of $50, which he claimed to be due him from his former employer as wages. Instead of calling upon the lawyer who had been recommended to him, however, he fell in with lawyer Estabrook, to whom he stated his case. Hestabrook told him he would collect the $50 for him for a fee of $10. The collect the $50 for him for a fee of $10. The bargain was closed, and the money paid

The lawyer and his client went to Elk Grove, and the suit was finally brought in the Justice's Court there. The defendant testified that he had paid the plaintiff all he owed him, and judgment was given against the lad.

Then a charge was trumped up against the latter of having made threats to do his employer bodily injury, and he was arrested. Estabrook demanded $5 more for defending him, and got it. The case proved to be a farce, it is said, and the young man was promptly discharged.

But he was the possessor of a gold watch, which had caught the eye of the astute Sacramento lawyer, who demanded that his client surrender it to him in order that he might protect the county against loss.

The boy demurred, saying that his watch was worth $80, but somehow or other he was prevailed upon to give it up to Estabrook. The latter is said to have since exhibited a gold watch to his friends here, with the remark that he had "made that much in one day," or something to that much in one day," or something to that effect.

Mr. McCullough, of Amador, addressed the Board on behalf of the protestants. He said the signers of the petition for the obstruction are neighbors of the petitioner, and had signed through mere sympathy for her. But she is a worthy lady who is well-do-do, and the sympathy is misplaced. The road in question had been traveled for thirty years, and Amador county had recently constructed a road, at considerable expense, to connect with it. considerable expense, to connect with it. People in Amador who want to do business in Sacramento do not want to do busi-ness in Sacramento do not want to be shut out by gates that are not necessary to the interests of any person. If a petition were desired, one fifty feet long could be had from citizens of Amador.

"Close this road," he said, "and you will shut out the trade of a whole township in Amador county that wants to go to Sacramento. We are not now traveling in the days of '49, and we need more roads than ever. When we built an expensive road down to your county line, we did not expect to be shut out."

Mr. Bates said he was in favor of the Board laying out a county road in that vicinity that would dispose of the whole matter and settle the gate question. Mr. Greer said that, from what he could learn, the sentiment in the locality named was in favor of the "poor widow woman," and he was ready to vote in her favor at any time.

Mr. McCullough replied that "the poor widow" was well off and not in danger of being injured by the removal of the gate.

Mr. Tebbets suggested that "we build a stone wall around the county and shut cout all intruders who might, come here to

Wash Fabrics.

If we simply said, without qualification, that this great stock had everything, we would be doing it an injustice. There are things which cannot be found there. It has no "left-overs" from last or previous seasons. It has no old styles or common patterns. It has no high prices or meager assortments. Those omissions, we believe, are to be commended rather than condemned. The plain effect is that we open up each season with larger stocks than ever before-in direct response to the demands of an increasing trade. This season we have many interesting and novel things in-

White Goods—In Open-work Lace effects, Cross-Bars. Hungarian Stripes, Persian Plaids, Piques, Sideband Suitings, and Raised Cords.

Satines—In new assortments comprising the latest shades. Best French, 35 cents a yard; best American, 20 cents.

Milaneis Fabrics—A new Satin-finished Cotton fabric with black ground and white and colored figures. Over 75 patterns. Warranted to wash. Per yard, 40 cts.

Ginghams-We count the pieces by the hundreds. The novel Stripes and pretty Plaids make this an interesting stock. The Scotch Zephyrs at 25 cents, in delicate but fast colorings, are quick sellers.

Lawns—Plain, figured and colors. The Black Organdies are fast black—an unusual feature in a Lawn.

Dress Flannels—The simplest is 10 cents a yard. The best is a Silk Cheviot (Silk and Wool) at 85 cents. The patterns are the dainty Stripes and pleasing Plaids now so popular for Blouse Waists, Men's Summer Shirts and Children's Dresses. Between the two prices quoted we have Silk-Striped Flannels, French Flannels and Ceylon Flannels in several grades.

Percales-Entirely new styles in these durable goods. Over 100 styles and various washable colors.

Zephyr Brocades—This is a French fabric, and is the finest of all Cotton goods. Their rare color, combination and beautiful designs make them the rivals of India Silks for Summer. The designs are brocaded in a delicate shade of the ground colors. Price, 50 cents a yard.

J. Mr. Bauer stated that he prepared the book himself outside of office hours, and although but partially finished he would complete it if allowed $100.

Trustees McLaughlin and Wolf said they believed the book to be a valuable one, but Mayor Comstock wanted time, and the usual action was taken. It was laid over one week.

Trustee McLaughlin reported to the Board that he had set the hours for street sprinkling from 9 P. M. till 7 A. M., and on the principal streets from 12 m. to 4 p. m.
The other members of the Board agreed that these were satisfactory hours, and the Street Commissioner said he proposed to see that the sprinklers did their work within these hours.

He also said a new pump was badly needed on the Y-street levee to pump out the sipage water, and wanted the Board to take action in the matter. "There's no need of any action," sug-gested Auditor McKee, "you've already or-rs Simmons and Carroll Capture Well-Loaded Stranger. About 11 o'clock last night Joseph Josephs, who keeps a saloon on L street, near Third, called the attention of officers Simmons and Carroll to a young colored man whom he was trying to get away from his door. As the officers moved up the youth started to run, and the officers followed. He ran to Second and around into the alley, and sought refuge in a vacant back lot. The officers followed, and found the fellow lying on his face in some weeds. Searching around they found a pistol near by, which he had thrown away. At the Station-house he said his name was Calvin Abner Irwin. His pockets contained a lot of letters and telegrams, a woman's bracelet and breastpin, a small woman's bracelet and breastpin, a small badge, some keys, $8 80 in money and a morphine injecting outfit. Among the traps was a well-worn certificate of baptism, shewing that he had given his correct name and that he was born in Yreka. There was also a memorandum indicating that he had been on trial somewhere.

He said he came to the city only a few days ago, and that he had a room at the days ago, and that he had a room at the City Hotel. He has the appearance of be-ing half Indian and half negro. Josephs said that when he told him not to stand in his doorway the fellow stuck a pistol in his face and threatened to kill him. The police think he may turn out to be a crook who is wanted elsewhere.

graceful Affair. The disgraceful conduct of Captain Norris O'Neill of the Oakland baseball team at Sunday's game was the principal topic of the year, but I don't think it should have it at all. It is well known that its bid had conversation on the streets yesterday among the ball cranks. The universal opinion was that O'Neill got off very luckily in being taken in charge by officer Stafford be-

In the affair.

Attorney Johnson then arose and to the surprise of those present asked for a continuance of the case for at least a week. He said that he had not had time to prepare said that he had not had time to prepare his defense, and besides several of the Oakland ball team were desired as witnesses, and they were not present. Mr. Jones said he would not object to a ontinuance, but thought a week too long.
Mr. Johnson insisted that it would work hardship on the players who were wanted as witnesses if they were summoned during the week, on account of their being scheduled for several games.

Judge Buckley granted the continuance and set the hearing for next Monday after-he had left for Honolulu.

Mr. Mott was seen while engaged in writing a letter of apology to the manager of the opera house where the medium was to exhibit his powers.

"Has Slater gone?" responded Mr. Mott to the reporter's question. "Well, I should think he had, and I don't like the idea at all. Here I have made all the arrangements for his appearance in San Jose: have ments for his appearance in San Jose; have billed the town, engaged the opera house and thoroughly advertised the entertain-ment. I came back to this city and find O'Neill and Manager Robinson left for the Bay on yesterday afternoon's train. CENSURE ON ALL SIDES.

The noisy Oakland Captain is not getting much sympathy. A San Francisco paper has the following to say about the affair:
"The climax of boisterous coaching, as illustrated by Captain O'Neill, was reached. at Sacramen', yesterday afternoon, when that player and umpire Chipman came to that pisyer and umpire Unipman came to blows on the field in the presence of 2,000 ladies and gentlemen. The police inter-fered, O'Neill was placed under arrest, taken to the station-house, and then released after putting up $50 bail. The scene, and a most disgraceful one it was, was but the natural result of the style of coaching adopted by the Oakland captain at times. He has a bad habit of coaching while he is a base-runner, though in direct violation of a base-runner, though in direct violation of one of the rules of the game, and no one knows this better than O'Neill himself. At times, unless called down by the ummost disgraceful scene ever witnessed on a California League diamond, and the Directors should lose no time in thoroughly investigating the matter and punishing those derserving of punishment. It is a duty they owe to the public, to themselves and the interests of the national game."

THE OAKLAND VERSION. Some of the Oakland players, in endeavoring to help out their Captain, are stepping over the bounds of truthfulness. One of them, in an interview with a Call reor them, in an interview with a Call reporter, says: "O'Neill was prancing up and down the line near the cushion, keeping up a ceaseless chattering to his many to eight years for grand lar-ceny.

United States Marshal Long brought up Frank Williams, the Placer stage robber, who goes to serve a life can stage robber, ing up a ceaseless chattering to his men, and Harper asked that he be called down. O'Neill went quietly back to first and Haror Neil went quietly back to first and Harper folded his arms waiting to hear from Chipman. All the latter would say was,
'Play ball,' but Harper did not pitch until some minutes had passed. Then McDonald, who was at bat, hit a grounder to Daley, who threw out O'Neill at second.
Beitz tried to double up McDorald in the Reitz tried to double up McDonald, but in throwing struck O'Neill on the arm with the ball, and it bounded off into the field, while two men went home. When Chip man decided that both O'Neill and Mc Donald were out, the Oakland Captain remonstrated and a wordy war ensued. What was said I did not hear. Finally Chipman struck O'Neill a blow on the neck and 'Tip' swung his right, landing forcibly on the umpire's jaw, cutting the flesh. Two policemen immediately seized O'Neill, hustled him into a carriage and drove to jail. Had he not been quickly carried away the crowd would have used him roughly."

When I left the great horse this morning he was standing knee deep in the straw in his stall. He seems more like a stallion in stud condition than a colt expected to race this season. His limbs are remarkably clean, and not a pimple is discernible on his shining coat.

What little work is given him at present he takes with a relish, and returns to his stall looking as though he wanted firecracker is different from a Krupp gun. I noticed that even during the short time I was here the sound had grown less dis-tinct, and I am told by those who have been galloping him daily that it is disappearing every day.

"It is about settled that El Rio Rey will

ARRESTED ON SUSPICION. Further Details of the Murder of Mrs. Butterfield.

DENVER, May 5th -There are no new developments in the Butterfield murder mystery. The police are of the opinion that the crime was committed by some man and in the fight which ensued he struck her a blow on the temple which caused her death. The woman's clothes were torn in shreds and her body badly scratched. Finding that the woman was dead the wretch covered her body with a blanket, washed his bloody hands in the wash-bowl the room and left by the back door,

Late this afternoon the police brought to the station a man who gave the name of Charles Munson, by occupation a painter. The man's face was very badly scratched and his forehead was in the same condition. His left eye is quite black, as if from a gouge or blow, and his right eye is not in a much better condition.

The Assistant Chief of Detectives put the man in a sweat box, with very unsatisfac-tory results. He claimed to have arrived in the city Thursday of last week, but could not tell who it was that scratched him or when or where it happened. His story is up. The scratches on his face look as if they might have been made within the last forty-eight hours, and to the police it is a strong indication that they have the right
